

World Economic Forum Selects Anthony Stevens of Oliver Wyman Among Its 2010 Young Global Leaders

Singapore, March 30, 2010 —Oliver Wyman announced that Anthony Stevens, Partner and Head of the Oliver Wyman's Financial Services business in Asia-Pacific, has been selected by the World Economic Forum as one of its Young Global Leaders for 2010. The World Economic Forum bestows this honor annually on a select group of outstanding young leaders, under the age of 40 years old, from around the globe for their professional accomplishments, commitment to society and their potential contributions to shape the future. For 2010, the WEF selected 197 Young Global Leaders from 72 countries and all parts of society from the spheres of business, politics & government, arts & culture, social entrepreneurship and opinion & media.

"Anthony has been key to Oliver Wyman's presence and growing influence in the Asia-Pacific region, and as a WEF Young Global Leader, we expect he will develop dynamic initiatives that support the intersection of global financial services community and the larger society," said Scott McDonald, Managing Partner of Oliver Wyman.

Mr. Stevens' career at Oliver Wyman spans over 15 years across all sectors of financial services in North America, Europe and Asia-Pacific. He led Oliver Wyman's insurance practice from 2002 to 2007, focused on helping clients with international strategy, growth, corporate development and risk management issues and spearheaded the development of Oliver Wyman's consulting franchise and intellectual capital in the insurance industry. In addition, Mr. Stevens participates in industry working groups and speaks regularly at public conferences and events. As of August 2008, he has been based in Singapore, and leads the firm's Financial Services business across the Asia-Pacific region.

Mr. Stevens graduated with a First Class Honours Degree in Mathematics from Cambridge University, and previous to joining Oliver Wyman, worked for two years as a consultant in Japan.
